

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

$3.50 Receipt Free, For Weak Men.

Send Name and Address Today.
You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, falling memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the tolls of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send him a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop dragging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, uplifting, SPOT TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at once, quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4069 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $2.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

The Question

of where to buy Hay, Grain and Feed is satisfactorily settled after you give us a trial. You will find that prices lower than ours mean also a corresponding lower quality.

SYNOPSIS.
Bob McAdoo, fatherless waif, runs away from home and becomes a newsboy and mill employee in the Steel City. He lives with policeman Flynn. Bob becomes a hero in the ward and when Haggin threatens to take his friend, Jim McHaffey's job from him, Bob decides to fight the political boss of the ward.

McAdoo whips Haggin, a prizefighter and saloonkeeper, and becomes boss of the Fourth ward. MacPherson, of the Citizens' party, seeks his aid. Bob saves the life of Eleanor Gilbert, sister of Henry Sanger, the steel king, but treats her roughly and with contempt. His hegemony, with MacPherson, His support elicits the Citizens' party ticket. Kathleen Flynn helps to educate him. McAdoo is cold and heartless, and power is the only thing he loves.

"The refusal of the district attorney to prosecute this dastardly crime is an outrage upon the county. The audacity of our bosses in refusing to yield to the popular demand in this matter would be inexplicable were not the ruthless hand of a certain one of our politicians plainly felt. It is time this man was unseated. He is a disgrace to the community. Of all the men prominent in the public eye we know of none who stands forth so repulsively as does Robert McAdoo. He represents all that is brutal and shameful in American politics."

In the fading twilight the man against whom this attack was directed read the bitter words, the concluding paragraph of an editorial in the Evening Press.

"He has begun already. The fool! He forgets he is attacking himself as well as me. To such lengths will passion carry a man!"

There was a knock at the door, and a young woman burst into the room.

At twenty-eight Kathleen Flynn was still unmarried to the wonderment of her many friends, since she seemed made for the home life. She was beautiful with the beauty of health and of the cheery, unselfish spirit which made her a woman among women. In the Fourth ward—such she was—principal, thanks to Bob's political influence, a thousand boys and girls loved her with an unwavering devotion they did not always accord their parents. She always remained a mystery to Bob McAdoo.

"YOUR BRUTAL THREATS DON'T FRIGHTEN ME—YOU BULLY!"

"What a shame!" she cried sympathetically, holding out a folded newspaper.

"So you've read it, too. Nice Christmas gift, isn't it?" Bob smiled in amused contempt. "I wouldn't care about it if I were you."

"I know such attacks are apt to make themselves true by imbibing the man assailed. And I think of your wonderful possibilities. No; don't laugh, please. I know what you are now, but I know too, what you will become. I know that some day you will be and do far more and better than you have yet set your eyes on."

"Ah! Then you care only because of what I shall do when this mysterious change takes place? It isn't that you like me?" Again his tone voiced a purely impersonal inquiry, with no hint of disappointment in it.

"Why should I?" she laughed frankly, with a girlish toss of her head.

"Why, indeed?" he smiled back, pleasantly for him. "But won't you sit down?"

"You were slow giving the invitation," she said gayly. "But I accept, for a few minutes, because I want to thank you for the beautiful books."

"Don't," he said, again pleasantly. "I still owe you more than I can pay." She did not try to thank him further.

For some minutes they sat silent before the fire. Kathleen observed him furtively, with the sensation of beholding a stranger. He seemed strangely less harsh than she was used to see him. She had never known him so—she cast about for the word—human.

He stirred from his contemplation of the fire.

"I have got to be honest with you, Kathleen. It is true, that editorial, but I don't—" determined to make my struggle alone. My own weight was quite enough without adding that of others, as being what I am. I inevitably must if I assumed the responsibilities of friendship. In other and uglier words, since I was placed here in the eternal scramble by a power over which I had no control I proposed to get on top, no matter over whom I had to scramble. And I didn't propose to put myself in relations where I should hesitate to trample over any one when desirable."

"And does the theory satisfy?" she asked. "You put it in the past tense, I notice."

He frowned impatiently. "I should like to see a man smoking cigarettes."

Remington hesitated, then accepted it.

"And I wouldn't take this business to heart if I were you. We have to preserve discipline in the organization, you know. There's nothing personal in it."

The handsome face flushed eagerly. "Do you mean that? Then call in the boys. I want to apologize for calling you a bully."

"No! Come, now; no theatricals. You're too good a man to be wasted in such childishness."

Bob, returning home, found Kathleen alone in the library. He entered and began without preliminary:

"Kathleen, this afternoon I told you that I didn't want any friends. You remember?"

"Yes."

"The other day a young chap—a fool, an ass, judged by my standards—met me on the street and without introduction or by your leave demanded my friendship. He was most theatrical and astute, and I liked him for it. He had been fighting me politically, though he's a greenhorn. I told him I would crush him—kill him politically. Tonight he continued his opposition. He took the opportunity to tell me a few things about myself which he seemed to think I had overlooked. I have not crushed him. I shall not. He—he has much to I lack. And I—you hit it exactly—I have been very lonely. I am going to test your theory, Kathleen. Good night!"

The convention will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Duncan opera house.

There is considerable speculation as to what action the convention will take regarding the "Little Blue Bill." It is believed the Republicans will oppose the passage of the amendment to the state constitution, making the instrument easier of amendment.

Governor William J. Mills, delegate W. H. Andrews and other prominent Republicans are here.

TRADE EXCURSION SIGNERS ARE MANY

Complete List of Those Who Will Go Will Be Announced Shortly

The canvass for the Peconic valley trade excursion is being closed, and it is expected to have the entire list of names subscribed by Thursday. The committee held another meeting at the Sheldon hotel yesterday when the members ate and discussed plans for increasing the length of the list. The complete list of 50 is expected to be signed by the last of this week. This number, with the military band of 36 pieces, will make the entire party number more than 75, and will make a representative delegation to go on the excursion.

Those who have signed are: Austin and Marr, City National Bank, Purdy Baker, company, First National Bank, Clyde E. Holmes, Rio Grande Valley Bank and Trust company, Kohlbier Bros., Krakauer, York and More, suc. Hayman Krupp, A. Conchabach, The E. E. HOSPITAL COSTING TOO MUCH MONEY

Government Wants the City and the State to Help Pay Expenses

The funds for the Liberator hospital in Ciudad Juarez are again proving a source of trouble, as the Mexican government does not wish to stand the whole expense of the institution as at the present time.

The hospital has been supported for several weeks solely by the government, as Francisco I. Madero ordered the government to attend to it on the recommendation of Dr. James L. White, who is in charge of it, although Ernesto Madero had ordered that the government should not do this.

At that time the hospital contained several of the soldiers who had been wounded in the battle of Ciudad Juarez. At the present time all of the insurgents wounded have been discharged and only the sick of the military garrison are now patients besides the sick from the city.

By the new arrangement which the hospital officials are trying to make Ciudad Juarez will stand a third of the expense of the hospital on account of it being partially a city institution; the state of Chihuahua will stand another third of the expense, and the Mexican government will stand the other third.

If it is made, will go into effect October 1.

Gracie of New York City.

Bowling Green was the cradle of New York city. It was the center of New Amsterdam. Where the custom house is stood the old Dutch fort. No. 1 Broadway was successively the home and headquarters of Lord Cornwallis, Lord Howe and Sir Henry Clinton, and Talleyrand lived there during his stay in this country. On the borders of the green were the homes of Benedict Arnold and Robert Fulton.

Long Lived Composers.

Composers, as a rule, have been remarkably long lived. Handel was seventy-four years of age when he died. Lalande was seventy-six, Bach was sixty-five years, Scarlatti was sixty-six. Haydn was seventy-seven, Palestrina seventy, Spahr seventy-five, Marcello fifty-three, Gluck seventy-three, Rossini seventy-eight, Pizzoli seventy-two, Cherubini eighty-two, Beethoven fifty-seven and Metzerbeer seventy.

BURGULARS ROB A JEWELRY STORE

Alleged Shoplifters Are Arrested; Stolen Pin Is Recovered

Burglars netted a rich haul Tuesday night when the jewelry store of Arthur Pallen, at 705 South Stanton street, was entered and goods to the value of over $500 taken.

Entrance was made through a rear transom and everything that struck the fancy of the thieves and which had not been placed in the safe was carried off. The theft was not discovered until the store was opened for business Wednesday morning. An accurate list of the stolen articles was furnished the city detective department, which is working on the case.

Alleged Shoplifters Caught. Bulky places in the clothing of a woman and two men as they emerged from the Emporium dry goods store Tuesday afternoon detective Smith placed them under arrest. Several suits of underwear and other articles of clothing were found when they were searched.

They gave the names of T. Gallardo, Jose Salazar and Clemente Boustales. All are being held as suspicious characters pending an investigation of the case.

May Have Burglars. Arrested on the suspicion that they have been concerned with a number of recent petty burglaries in the lower part of town, G. Duran, Rodrigo Esquivel and Alvaro Barrio are held at the police station. The men were arrested Tuesday night by patrolmen Lynch and Garcia.

Recoverable Valuable Pin. Within 12 hours after the loss of a pin set with diamonds and pearls, and valued at about $1000, had been reported to the city detectives by Mrs. N. Solomon, 1124 North El Paso street, the missing property had been recovered and returned to its owner.

FOR SICK, SOUR BILIOUS STOMACH, INDIGESTION AND GAS TAKE CASCARETS.

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they cure indigestion, because they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended forever. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle, cleansing, too.
